

Brief Profile

Swastik Bihani is a seasoned Silicon Valley business leader with 20+ years of experience in the high-tech industry. He has had a long successful tenure in cybersecurity and fintech spanning multiple geographies (US, UK, Brazil, India). He is experienced in managing and shepherding high-performance teams across engineering, product management, and all aspects of Go To Market. His breadth of general management experience ranges from acquisition of new technology to integration and growth of both the product and people.

Swastik was the founding VP of Products at Simility which was acquired by PayPal for $120M. He currently leads multiple product lines at PayPal and is also the GM for PayPal's India offices.

He has an MBA from UC Berkeley's Haas School of Business and is also very active in the angel investment communities.